(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

Rome, Mar. 20. While the nations of Europe, particularly those which have endeavoured to maintain the gold standard in spite of dwinding trade, are struggling to balance their budgets, Italy, through a series of economies, has reached a position from which she can look about her almost with complacency. Her finances to-day are very sound.

Increase in receipts during the current fiscal year. have resulted in an estimated 1935-36 budget totalling 19,645,000,000 lire, or 991,000,000 lire less than for the present year.

The estimated deficit for the year 1935-36, which opens next July 1, is placed at 1,657,000,000 lire according to the Association of Italian Corporations.

Patriotism A virtue Or Vice

ENTIRELY ARTIFICIAL QUALITY

NATIONALISM CAUSES WAR

By C. H. S. DUNCAN

"Patriotism," says a well-known writer, "is not an instinct. It is an utterly artificial quality. It has already brought the world-to its knees and caused untold misery. Isn't it time we looked this cheating goddess in the face, and then turned our back on her for ever?"

This is a hard saying, especially. for Scots, who more than most pride themselves on their love of

The writer, like so many thinking people at the present time, is dealing with the question of world peace. Nationalism, he suggests, has been the cause of wars in the past, and seems likely to cause them again, unless it is checked in its more exuberant forms.

But patriotism. Surely this is n virtue above reproach? Are thinking people to turn their back on love of country?

In the large mass of modern literature dealing with the problem of world peace, the thought constantly arises that nationalism is the great evil, and must go. Thus Mr. H. G. Wells makes his modern scientist say-"This age of war a and conquest is over. The patriots, ever. The loyalties that served require, allowing at least one for them must die. Shaw's New Satire

BRILLIANT BORE"

Bernard Shaw's new play, "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles," had its world premiere in New York recently.

It is presented against magni-ficent tropical settings, and is a be-wildering medley of eugenics, religion, and politics intermingled with recurrent blasts of typical Shavian satire and humour (says the Daily Telegraph.)

At a "tropical port in the British Empire" the Governor of the island and his wife, aided by an immigration officer and a young woman tourist, collaborate with a native high priest and his wife in a unique eugenic experiment.

Four children-two boys and two girls-who are the result, are so physically perfect and so shielded, through their upbringing, from the turmoil of the outer world that their joint parents hope they have founded a new, regenerated race.

Twenty years clapse, and the two girls have reached marriageable age. Then an English clergyman -dignisled by Mr. Shaw with the extraordinary name of "Phosphor Hamingtap"-who has been kidnapped by pirates from his parish in Weston-super-Mare, unexpectedly lands in the islands. When he explains that his father; an eminent scientist, has raised him on nitro-POIL a small caultsower till gen, he is eagerly seized upon as a suitable mate for both girls.

"NOT END OF THE WORLD"

When news of his experiment penetrates to the Empire at large. into small pieces and add one and the fleets of all the self-governing half breakfast cupfuls white British Dominions-including even sauce, which should have been a sloop from Pitcairn Island-arand warriors and masters, the made while the cauliflower was rive, demanding the delivery of the flags and the nations, have to be boiling. Keep the sauce hot while depart without correction rounded up now and put away for you poach as many eggs as you threatened bombardment, as the result of a message that smallpox has broken out on the island.

Thereafter the author's inventive fun waxes fast and furious. Wireless reports from England announce that she has proclaimed, her independence from the Dominions the slogan, "Back to Elizabeth".

Soon afterwards an angel, draped in flowing white robes, makes an impressive descent on a wire to announce the arrival of Judgment

The angel, wearing pincenez and carrying a brief case, explains that plaining that Judgment Day is not the end of the world, but the beginning of real human responsibility, inasmuch as only those whose lives are useless will be taken, while the useful people will be allowed to

"Well, I am damned," remarks the governor. "Very probably," retorts the angel.

A series of messages announce the devastating effect of judgment day at home. Millions of pepole unaccountably disappear, including practically all the members of the Stock Exchange and the medical profession. Mayfair is a desert, while during the intercession service St. Paul's whole congregation fades away, until only the Dean in the pulpit is left.

The angel files away, and then it is found that the four eugenic children have vanished into thin

The car accommodates 56 passengers, and is fitted with air-conditioning, electric lighting, and safety glass windows. It has a luggage compartment.

JEALOUSY AFFLICTS ALL HUMANITY

EXCEPTIONS ARE FEW

By Lupino Lane

Most of us are jealous in some degree or other, but few of us care to admit that we suffer from one of the most natural of human attri-

. Jealousy, in whatever form i exists, may as a rule be traced back. to childhood. I remember once goling to a house where there were three children. The parents were very fond of all three, but most especially did they dote on the youngest. With the sensitiveness which children possess to a marked degree any little extra attention which was given to the youngest produced a fit of sulkiness in the other two. They resented not the fact that the youngest was getting something which they could not have, but that it was getting the share of parental attention which they rightly looked on an theirs.

Children like limelight. There is the natural desire to show off their good points, to show how clever they are in a desire to attract the attention of those they love. Aren't adults the same? Don't most of us like to show off a little? Of course we do. Where some of us go wrong is in feeling that tinge of envy when we meet anyone a little more talented than ourselves. 'Oh?" we say, "I could do that particular thing if I cared. There's nothing particularly clever in that." All the time, of course, we know that we can't, that in this one thing someone else excels, and so we attempt to minimise their performance. How mean of us-but how human!

MEN AS BAD AS WOMEN

Men are as bad as women in that respect. One has only to go into a club or place where men congregate to notice that in some things men are as jealous as the opposite sex are alleged to be. Some sporting event has taken place; someone has done a fine flight under very trying conditions, or put up a good show in adverse conditions: that is quite enough for someone in the crowd to remark, "Oh yea! Very good perhaps, but there was everything very much in it myself." Why?

The reason is often that the imelight has temporarily disappeared from his sight to be switched on to someone more atractive-more interesting. once he resents it, and his only method of climbing back into the sun is by decrying the other person's activities.

Accuse this man of jealousy. You would raise a storm of resentment at once, and truly in many cases, this spiteful attitude is not conscious. It is the process of time over a period of disillusionis just the person who makes the remarks calculated to helittle. remarks calculated to belittle.

The inferiority complex is responsible for the jenious urge, too. A person who has failed at most of life's achievements, big or little, an unparalleled view of the country.

As they strive to pull down any edifice of fame or popularity, they feel for the moment a sense of the power that has cluded them through their lives. If they cannot construct; they may destroy; to them either is power, however tem-

In the successful, they see a glimpse of what might have been; lacking the will-power or even the character to emulate, they endeayour to bring the performance down to their own level by destructive criticism in order that their own achievements shall not appear too mean by comparison.

IF WE ARE HONEST

If we are honest with ourselves been times when we would have given pounds to stand in somesomeone else has done. If that It is being tested in this country | feeling be genuine appreciation and admiration of the achievement, then we have done right, for we may have learned something; if it has been followed by a feeling that perhaps it wasn't so clever at all, that we could have done the same with the phenomenal luck that the other fellow had, then we're wrong. What do the majority of us real-

Society? Of course we do. All three are inudable ambitions in themselves, for they are based on a human nature as old as the hills. When, however, in a desire to achieve these summits, we belittle the efforts of others more successful than ourselves in the race, because we know how impossible it is for some of us to climb. further, then that is jealousy, and a small-minded form of jealousy,

The honeymoon of the Duke and Duchess of Kent nears its conclusion with the trip of the Royal Couple to the West Indies. Layout shows scenes of the voyage to Trinidad. Left, the Duchess enjoys a stroll on the bridge, while, Right, her husband makes the acquaintance of those who prefer the swimming pool-in particular a young natator. Below, the Duke and Duchess are seen on the lawn at Government House, Portau-Spain, with Governor Sir Alfred Claud Hollis. It is hoped that the Duke of Gloucester, on his way to the West Indies, will meet the honeymooners there. He has not seen them since before their marriage.

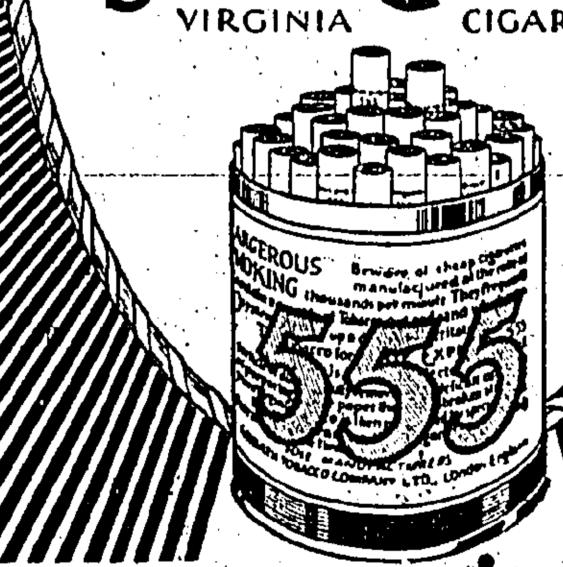

It was a tired but thankful crowd of naval officers and men who were descending the Jacob's ladder of the cruiser Richmond at San Francisco as this photo was taken. For they were the 64 survivors of the dirigible Macon crash who were rescued by the Richmond. The Macon went down in the Pacific Ocean off Monterey, Cal. Of her 83 men, 81 were saved in night rescues by warships.

BRITISH CHALLENGES TO ITALY AND FRANCE

London, Mar. 20. In introducing the Air Estimates in the House of Commons to-day, Sir Philip-Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, announced that two experimental aeroplanes were under construction for the Air Ministry. Italy robbed Britain of the al-

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"Forsaking All Others," the most star-studded film since "Dinner At Eight," will be seen at the Queen's Theatre on Saturday. With a cast as large and magnificent as the last year hit, the new picture is revolutionary in several respects. In the first place, the cast is headed by three outstanding stars, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery, who, while they have played in teams, have never be-fore appeared together. Perfectly cast, they comprise what could be called the ace triangle of the year. Secondly, the new picture has verve swim before breakfast! and pace not the slightest bit weighted or slowed down by the enormity of its cast. This is due to the brilliant this picture excels even his smash hit, two men the next. HOPE OF THE WORLD

We cannot congratulate ourselves at this time that the nations, of humanity, have progressed very far towards the ideal which the late President Wilson set up for them. His dream was an International Government at Geneva, and at one time there was reason to believe that it would materialise, and take to itself the responsibility of preserving the peace of the world. The League of Nations has done its best; but it has been handleapped from the beginning. It has not had the strength to compel ob- the country. servance of its laws, for the nations retained too many of their old pre-Powers: not half a dozen of them, ism, and the subconscious mind. but all of thom. Membership in the Lengue must be compulsory. And any nation violating interinational law must be forced to national justice, and, if guilty, pay the penalty. That was the ideal which President Wilson conceived or something like it, and that, it would seem, is the only real spiritual things. guarantee of peace that we can every nation, and immediate abandonment of national armaments, teaving in the hands of an international force the only weapons in the world, we might then with a feeling of security scrap our navies study them. and our nir fleets, for we would be assured of protection against international banditry. As it is we must pin our hopes for the solution of the present European crisis upon the diplomacy and far-sightedness of the statesmen of three Powers: Britain, France and Italy. If they blunder, we may be lost.

SEEDS OF WAR

For this present tension it is hard to place the blame. We cannot find fault with Germany's view that, surrounded by armed nations; she was at the mercy of an agother power. And

FOOT COMFORT—

Gordon's shoes are up-to-date, superior in manufacture, and appearance, designed to give absolute comfort.

Compared with a cheap shoe they are a much better investment in that they will outlast several pairs of inferior quality, giving you lasting wear, and sturdy service.

An advanced exhibition will be on display this week.

As a result of the rising dollar, these shoes, while maintaining our usual high standard, are considerably lower in price.

Quoting Viscount Byng, First Baron of Vimy, after viewing "THE LIVES OF A BENGAL LANCER." Paramount's tribute to the Anglo-Saxon Spirit of Empire.

"The picture affected me deeply and reminded me of my days in the British Army more than any film I have yet seen: It was amazing to me that Hollywood, so remote from the Indian frontier, could have so faithfully preserved both the spirit and the tradition of the military service.

Naturally, being a soldier, my first thought was to look for tactical errors in the manoeuvring of troops, but with one slight exception during a battle scene (when errors in formation are permissible and sometimes necessary) I found the picture to be remarkably -accurate;-so-much so that L.can.commend. If very highly.

Personally, this film affected me with its spirit of heroism and sacrifice and I am unashamed to say that there were tears in my eyes when it ended. I should feel safe in saying that it will appeal to Englishmen as a whole and to that more critical element in India who are nearer to its subject matter.

Lady Byng enjoyed it as much as I and we both desire to congratulate the Director, Henry Hathaway and the Actors, Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir. Guy Standing who made it so interesting and real. Our countryman, Sir Guy Standing, gave an outstanding performance in the best spirit of: the service he represented."

In our first hand, Graham Mc- Hankow Namee, a local hotel manager, sat Harbin in the North, and his partner was Honolula Charles Sanders. They were playing in one of the Monday night duplicate games.

The Play

Against a four heart contract, McNameo opened the king of spades and Sanders played the jack. The ace was continued and South NO CASE TO ANSWER echoed out, playing the deuce.

This play of the jack and deuce by South was a strong demand for his partner to continue the spade suit. So North played the ten of spades, which was high. The aver-

HITLER MAY ASK FOR COLONIES

FRANCE INCREASES ARMED STRENGTH

REMINDS BERLIN ALLIES GREAT WAR

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinancs, 1894. Received, March 21, 10.30 a.m.)

Washington observers predict that Germany's next move in her struggle for equality will be a demandfor the return of the Colonies she surrendered after the War, which include islands now mandated by Japan.

In Paris, the Government has approved the notification of the League of Nations of Germany's rearmament, M. Laval's visit to Moscow, and participation in the conference with Britain and Italy to decide on policy. M. Flandin has reminded Germany that the Allies won the Great War.

At the same time, France is taking rapid measures to bring her Air Force and Army to a more formidable strength. Sir John Simon has told the House of Commons that no modification of the Treaty of Versailles will be permitted without Parliament's full knowledge.

Washington, Mar. 20. Some observers here predict that Germany's next move will be to demand the return of her Colonies lost in the War, which, if they included the mandated islands, would undoubtedly involve complications with Japan.

Diplomatic officers, however, are convinced that Germany is out to regain her lost world position and the prestige and authority which went with it. For this reason s return of her Colonies might be the price of Germany's re-entry into the League of Nations.

It is also suggested that Germany might demand plebiscites in Austria and the Free Port of Danzig, and other European areas, similar to that obtained in the Saar.—United

BLUNT NOTE

Paris, Mar. 20. A blunt Note has been sent to Berlin stating that the French arm. Cabinet has approved, firstly, the notification of the League of Nations as to Germany's re-armament; secondly, M. MAN'S MENTALITY CHANGING

JAPANESE OPINION

New York, March 20. The gradual shifting of man's mentality in favour of peace, was the subject of a speech by Mr. H. Saito, the Japanese Ambassador, at a banquet of the Japan Society to-night.

The reasons for this trend, he said, was the realisation of the futility of war and the growing prevalence of justice, in international affairs.

Equestrian statues of great commanders had given way to monuments to unknown soldlers, and the slogan "My Country is right; yours must be wrong," was no longer ac cepted, at least not by self-respect ing minds.

There seemed to be a race between peace and war. He had no doubts, he said, with regard to the outcome. He could see no danger either across the Atlantic or the

In Asia, the time for a rapprochement between Japan and China had arrived, apparently. Japan and China ought to be good friends, he went on. It is also learned here that the United States Treasury sold Guatemala about 10,000 ounces of gold last year, which provoked speculation as to whether the United States was disposed to exchange gold for silver from China.

Patriotism A virtue Or Vice

ENTIRELY ARTIFICIAL QUALITY

By C. H. S. DUNCAN

"Patriotiem," says a well-known writer, "is bt an instinct. It is on uttorly artificial quality. It has already brought the world to its knees and caused untold misery. Isn't it time we looked this cheating goddess in the face, and then turned our back on her for ever?"

This is a hard saying, especially. for Scots, who more than most pride themselves on their love of

The writer, like so many thinking people at the present time, is dealing with the question of world peace: Nationalism, he suggests, has been the cause of wars in the past, and seems likely to cause them again, unless it is checked in its more exuberant forms.

But patriotism. Surely this is a virtue above reproach? Are thinking people to turn their back on love of country?

In the large mass of modern literature dealing with the problem of world peace, the thought constantly arises that nationalism is the great evil, and must go. Thus Mr. H. G. Wells makes his modern scientist say-"This age of war a back."

BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

There is no doubt that all this sort of thing is having a very dirferent enect on two amerent types | things about others? Surely of mind. To one type it is the absolute invention of the devil him-Belf. All who have such lucas are traitors and enemies of their country. To the otner type it is the gospel of the brotherhood of man, and all who oppose it are warmongers and lingoes, the enemies of humanity.

Is it not possible, however, that there is a little truth on each side? The Imperialist and the Nationalist, at any rate, will have to consider whether there may not be some small amount of sense, even in the views of the despised pacispreading with great rapidity, and there is no doubt that in many of the young.

The objection should of course be, not to patriotism in its best sense, but to narrow Nationalism. Love of one's country is almost an the place where they were born, graceful and an evil thing. and for the people among whom they were brought up. But why, because one loves one's country should one hate or despise others?

ALL IN THE SAME BOAT

Is it good taste, or sensible policy, just because one thinks one's fellew Britons.

-Scottish-patriotism-has-sometimes one very unpleasant characteristic-a dislike of all things English. It is just this characteristic which proves such patriotism to be no virtue but a vice. In fact it is quite astonishing to find decent, kindly people, who call themselves Christians, seeming honestfist, for these views seem to be ly to believe that envy, hatred and malice, and all uncharitableness, are quite proper and virtuous quarters they are taking great hold where questions of nationalism are concerned.

Love of one's country may be a virtue. Dislike of other nations is certainly no such thing; and the fostering of such dislike among instinct. It is natural for most any of the nations belonging to the people to have some affection for British family of nations, is a dis-

Shaw's New Satire

BRILLIANT BORE"

Bernard Shaw's new play, "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles," had its world premiere in New York

It is presented against magni-ficent tropical settings, and is a bewildering medley of eugenics, religion, and politics intermingled with recurrent blasts of typical Shavian satire and humour (says the Daily Telegraph.)

At a "tropical port in the British Empire" the Governor of the Island and his wife, aided by an immigration officer and a young woman tourist, collaborate with a native high priest and his wife in a unique eugenic experiment.

Four children—two boys and two girls-who are the result, are so physically perfect and so shielded, through their upbringing, from the turmoil of the outer world that their joint parents hope they have founded a new, regenerated race.

Twenty years clapse, and the two girls have reached marriageable age. Then an English clergyman -dignified by Mr. Shaw with the extraordinary name of "Phosphor Hamingtap"-who has been kidnapped by pirates from his parish in Weston-super-Mare, unexpected ly lands in the islands. When he explains that his father, an eminent scientist, has raised him on nitrogen, he is engerly seized upon as a suitable mate for both girls.

"NOT END OF THE WORLD"

When news of his experiment penatrates to the Empire at large, the fleets of all the self-governing British Dominions-including even and conquest is over. The patriots, sauce, which should have been a sloop from Pitcairn Island—arand warriors and masters, the made while the cauliflower was rive, demanding the delivery of the depart, without carrying out a threatened bombardment, as the result of a message that smallpox has broken out on the island.

Thereafter the author's inventive fun waxes fast and furious. Wireless reports from England announce that she shas proclaimed - her independence from the Dominions "Back to Blogan. with Elizabeth".

Soon afterwards an angel, draped in flowing white robes, makes an impressive descent on a wire to announce the arrival of Judgment

The angel, wearing pincenez and carrying a brief case, explains that England was selected first, for judgment out of deference to Dr. Ingo, and startles the colony by explaining that Judgment Day is not the end of the world, but the beginning of real human responsibility, inasmuch as only those whose lives are useless will be taken, while the useful people will be allowed to

"Well, I am damned," remarks the governor. "Very probably," retorts the angel.

A series of messages announce the devastating effect of judgment day at home. Millions of pepole unaccountably disappear, including practically all the members of the Stock Exchange and the medical profession. Mayfair is a desert, while during the intercession service St. Paul's whole congregation fades away, until only the Bean in the pulpit is left.

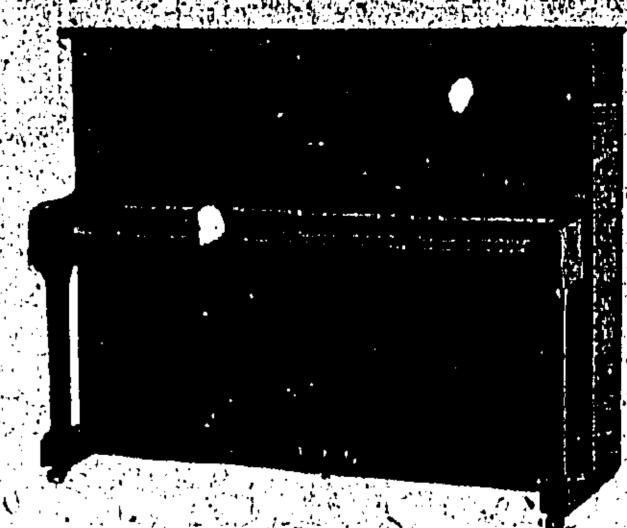

The angel flies away, and then it is found that the four eugenic children have vanished into thin

"CHOST" TRAIN TESTED

NOISELESS RUNNING AT 70 M.P.H.

LUXURY RAIL TRAVEL

London. A "ghost train" running at over 60 miles an hour left Euston for Leighton Buzzard one morning. So silent was the running that gardeners working on the adjoining railway allotments heard noth-

This was a petrol driven railcar with pneumatic tyres. These tyres are the secret of its performance. It came back from Leighton Buzzard, a distance of 40.2 miles in 42.5 minutes. It can accelerate to 50 m.p.h. in a distance of a few yards, and in emergency pull up from that speed in 130 yards on a dry rail.

Inside each tyre are two inner tubes. If one of them is punctured a whistle sounds in the driver's fact that the youngest was getting cabin and he slows up, but continues to the next station. He can change a wheel in seven minutes. There are sixteen wheels; even if they were all punctured he could "crawl" along at 40 m.p.h. Underneath the inner tubes is a rubber

The maximum speed is 70 m.p.h. and the "cruising" speed 60 m.p.h. The engine is a twelve-cylinder petrol engine of 240 horse-power; the gear-box has four speeds in either direction. The car has a driver's control cabin like the conning-tower of a submarine, projecting from the roof of the car at the motor end. This enables a clear view in both directions along the track. With the motor behind, it is possible for the passengers to see ahead and on both sides, giving an unparalleled view of the country. LACK OF VIBRATION

The sensation of speed is much less; only the speedometer convinces that the car is travelling at over 60 m.p.h. In test runs the highest speed reached was 67 m.p.h. The lack of vibration or shock is remarkable, resembling the performance of a luxury car on a smooth road. The car accommodates 56 passengers, and is fitted with air-conditioning, electric lighting, and safety glass windows. It has a luggage compartment.

The wheels are of pressed steel disc type, and steel flanges being silenced by rubber inserts, while contact with the rail is actually made by pneumatic tyres of 36 inches diameter.

This type of car, has already been running for four years in France and the French colonies, and has covered over two million miles in these services.

EXCEPTIONS ARE FEW

By Lupino Lane

Most of us are jealous in some degree or other, but few of us care to admit that we suffer from one of the most natural of human attri-

Jonlousy, in whatever form i exists, may as a rule be traced back to childhood. I remember once going to a house where there were three children. The parents were very fond of all three, but most especially did they dote on the youngest. With the sensitiveness which children possess to a marked degree any little extra attention which was given to the youngest produced a fit of sulkiness in the other two. They resented not the something which they could not have, but that it was getting the share of parental attention which they rightly looked on as theirs. Children like limelight. There is the natural desire to show off their attention of those they love. Aren't adults the same? Don't most of us like to show off a little? Of course we do. Where some of us go wrong is in feeling that tinge of envy who we meet anyone a little more talented than ourselves. "Oh?" we say, "I could do that particular thing if I cared. There's nothing particularly clever in that." All the time, of course, we know that wo can't, that in this one thing someone else excels, and so we attempt to minimise their performance. How mean of us-but good points, to show how clever

they are in a desire to attract the

how human! MEN AS BAD AS WOMEN

Men are as bad as women in that respect. One has only to go into a club or place where men congregate to notice that in some things men are as jealous as the opposite sex nre alleged to be. Some sporting event has taken place; someone has done a fine flight under very trying conditions, or put up a good show in adverse conditions: that is quite enough for someone in the crowd to remark, "Oh yes! Very good perhaps, but there was everything very much in it myself." Why?

The reason is often that the limelight has temporarily disappeared from his sight to beswitched on to someone more attractive-more interesting. once he resents it, and his only method of climbing back into the sun is by decrying the other person's activities. Accuse this man of jealousy. You would raise a storm of resentment at once, and truly in many cases, this spiteful attitude is not conscious. It is the process of time over a period of disillusion-

The inferiority complex is responsible for the jealous urge, too. A person who has failed at most of life's achievements, big or little, is just the person who makes the remarks calculated to belittle.

As they strive to pull down any edifice of fame or popularity, they feel for the moment a sense of the power that has eluded them through their lives. If they cannot construct; they may destroy; to them either is power, however tem-

In the successful, they see glimpse of what might have been; lacking the will-power or even the character to emulate, they endeavour to bring the performance down to their own level by destructive criticism in order that their own achievements shall not appear too mean by comparison.

IF WE ARE HONEST If we are honest with ourselves we have to admit that there have been times when we would have given pounds to stand in someone else's shoes, to have done what someone else has done. If that feeling be genuine appreciation and admiration of the achievement, then we have done right, for we may have learned something; if it has been followed by a feeling that perhaps it wasn't so clever at all, that we could have done the same with the phenomenal luck that the other fellow had, then we're wrong. What do the majority of us real-want? ... Don't we want-as a rule to stand and shoulders above the masses, to become an outstanding fellow in some walk of life, to gain the plaudits of the crowd, to corner the money market or figure in Society? Of course we do.

All three are laudable ambitions in themselves, for they are based on a human nature as old as the ills. When, however, in a desire to achieve these summits, we belittle the efforts of others more successful than ourselves in the race, because we know how impossible it is for some of us to climb further, then that is jealousy, and a small-minded form of jealousy,

HOPE OF THE WORLD BOON TO

We cannot congratulate ourselves at this time that the nations, of humanity, have progressed very far. towards the ideal which the late; President Wilson set up for them. His dream was an International Government at Geneva, and at one time there was reason to believe that it would materialise, and take to itself the responsibility of proserving the peace of the world. The League of Nations has done its best; but it has been handicapped from the beginning. The melancholy train of thoughts which has nearly induced a swan song from us, was provoked by the most_dreadful discovery in any man's life, whether he be a latterday Pepys or one of the proletariat —the first grey hair, which we managed to sort out the other day, while grooming ourself to mee that other best girl.

"Bah!" we snarled contemptuously, as we jerked out the offending member and sacrificed it to our vanity in the fireplace.

But others that will be followdistinguished head of grey hair and tell that other chap with the bald pate to keep his hair on.

But what a distressing position to be now in, with this first warning, of the best years of our life having been already put behind us. Shall we get into a panie like the old girl there who, like us, is drifting into a comfortless old age, and, risking everything in one last desperate throw, get married?

What an awful alternative, to ask a person to take. Was it then for this that we have all along successfully resisted the blandishments of tusk-toothed maidens and spurned scheming dowagers?

The thesis was too much for him, the Insurance Agent. For the first time, we saw final defeat in the air of resignation with which he gathered his papers and took his departure. He was smoking our other Corona!

Academia

The acute despair of the Belection Committee of the Royal Academy, photographed at their toil struck me forcibly. Only one member seemed complacent: He had the coveted seat at the extreme left the of the semi-circle.

Since Sir Joshua Reynold's time many relief expedients have been tried. One year they had all the entries stuck in batches against a long wall and an aged Academician was whirled quickly past them in a wheel-barrow shouting hunting cries and throwing pellets of wet dough over his shoulder. This failed because he grew tired and took to throwing great handfuls at n time.-

Another experiment was to get little girl to open a big coloured picture-book at random, while the Selection Committee looked on. Procedure:

ISLAND ROAD FATALITY

ACCUSED DRIVER'S STORY

SESSIONS TRIAL

Loung Yim, lorry driver, arraigned on a charge of the follows: manslaughter of a seven-year-old boy named Lau Cheuk-so as a result of accused's lorry colliding with a Fiat car on Island Road on January 29, gave evidence on his own behalf to-day and asserted that the accident was caused by the Fint car cutting in from its incorrect side to its left side of the road.

The case opened on Tuesday and is being heard by the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice A. D. A. Mac-Gregor and a jury. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, represents the Crown and Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. Peter H. Sin, appears for ac-

Before closing its case, the Crown this morning recalled Hau Ching-to to say that the hood of the Fiat car in which he was travelling with seven other passengers was up at the time of the accident.

Mr. M. I. De Ville was also recalled and said that the angle between a straight line in front of the lorry and the iron rods projecting over the left front of the lorry was 17 degrees and the total range of vision of the lorry. driver was 57 degrees.

THE DEFENCE Mr. Lim said the defence would say that the lorry was in a fit condition to be on the road; that HECKLED AT DINNER the driver was keeping a sharp look-out and his view of the road where the accident occurred was unobstructed; that the lorry was on its correct side of the road, was second gear and going not more than 10 m.p.h. at the time; that although the lorry was over loaded, this was not the fault of the driver, who took proper preenutions in enquiring if it were overloaded before setting off; that the Fiat car was not in a fit condition to be on the road and tary for Labour, lost her temper took the corner at 20 to 25 m.p.h. before an audience of 1,200 peron its wrong side of the road; sons during a banquet address saw the lorry he tried to get back | regarding the arrest of the British

Miss M. Larssen Wins "A" Class Event

The sixth Wednesday race of the second series, organised by the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, was held yesterday. Seven yacht started in the "A" class event and after covering the course of 5.4 miles, crossed the Club line in the following order: Joss (Miss M. Larssen), Pat (Commodore Elliott), Wasp (Major Griffin), Jan (Miss. H. Crawhall-Wilson), Isobel (Dr. L. J. Davis), Artemis (Mrs. E. Elliott) and Carpenter (Mr. A. The First Bell will be rung at Elliott) and Carpenter (Mr. A. Hazeland).

In the race for "I", "Y" and "G" class yachts, six started but the only three to finish were Toynette (Mr. W. Fennell), Gael (Mr. J. H. Davis) and Widgeon (Col. Bilder-STONE STONE STONE

Career For Girls

. (By Frank Poxon)

What to do with our girls? Well from what I heard yesterday there are worse careers for women than billiards professional.

At the Burroughes Hall, where the women's professional championship is being played, I was told that the average weekly earnings of the players are about £7 and Miss Joyce Gardner, ex-amateur champion and now a professional, said to me: "I have never regretted turning professional.

"I don't think I was cut out for an office life. Money? Oh, not a terrible lot but enough, and we lead a pleasant varied life, touring the country and meeting interesting

"I am engaged, but I won't get married until we can get a house at a moderate price with room for a fullsized billiard table." Miss Margaret Lennan, of Scotland, who was playing at the mo-ment, wore high-heeled shoes. "Miss Lennan is the only one of us who wears that type of shoe," said Miss Gardner. "My own have almost flat heels.

Quoting Viscount Byng, First Baron of Vimy, after viewing "THE LIVES OF A BENGAL LANCER," Paramount's tribute to the Anglo-Saxon Spirit of Empire.

"The picture affected me deeply and reminded me of my days in the British Army more than any film I have yet seen. It was amazing to me that Hollywood, so remote from the Indian frontier, could have so faithfully preserved both the spirit and the tradition of the military service.

Naturally, being a soldier, my first thought was to look for tactical errors in the manoeuvring of troops, but with one slight exception during a battle scene (when errors in formation are permissible and sometimes necessary) I found the picture to be remarkably accurate; so much so that I can commend it very highly.

Personally, this film affected me with its spirit of heroism and sacrifice and I am unashamed to say that there were tears in my eyes when it ended. I should feel safe in saying that it will appeal to Englishmen as a whole and to that more critical element in India who are nearer to its subject matter.

Lady Byng enjoyed it as much as I and we both desire to congratulate the Director, Henry Hathaway and the Actors. Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy. Standing who made it so interesting and real. Our countryman, Sir Guy Standing, gave an outstanding performance in the best spirit of the service he represented."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

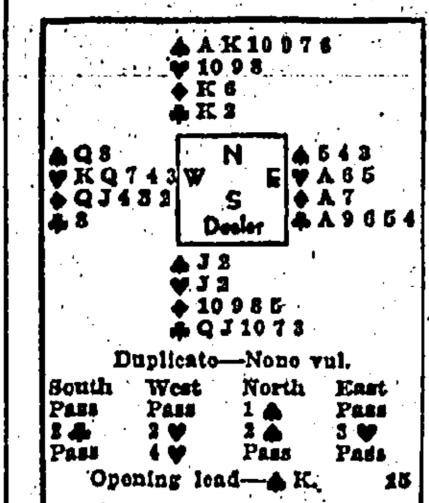

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

By W. E. McKenney

This begins a series of six articles selected from hands played at the Terrace Bridge Club in New York. The players at this club have been unusually successful during the last year. In addition to many local and sectional cups won by this group of players, two national trophies were added to their collection this year.

ALCHTES AND BALLOUGH ALCOHOLD INCOME.

I believe there are more clubs devoted exclusively to bridge in

New York than there are in all the rest of the country. At these Canton clubs, hundreds of players will be nightly enjoying rubber (Mukden) bridge or a duplicate tournament. Hamburg In our first hand, Graham Mc- Hankow Namee, a local hotel manager, sat listbia in the North, and his partner was Honolulu Charles Sanders. They were playing in one of the Monday night duplicate games.

The Play

Against a four heart contract, McNamee opened the king of spades and Sandors played the jack. The acc was continued and South NEW echoed out, playing the deuce.

This play of the jack and deuce by South was a strong demand for his partner to continue the spade suit. So North played the ten of spades, which was high. The average player would discard a small club, but if he does, the contract will be made.

The play that South made to defeat the contract was to trump his partner's good ten of spades with through Messrs. Maneger.

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received North.

West, of course, also has to lose a diamond trick and the contract is defeated.

Today's Contract Problem

This second hand from the Torrace Bridge Club of New York combines two profits.

Stocks were dull and irregular. Traders were concentrating on grains which advanced sharply, especially which advanced sharply, especially which advanced sharply, especially which advanced in the South-west, which are threatening ports of bad dust storms in the South-west, which are threatening ports of bad dust storms in the South-west, some further advance is probable in the absence of relief; but there is nothing very bullish in the situation. Corn: This market was largely influenced by wheat. Imports of corn will probably meet any further advance.

Copper shares were steady, due to continued hopes that Producers will buvers. The market will probably continued hopes that Producers will agree on a curtailment programme. On the Bond market, Foreign issues declined, particularly Belgians, which touched new lows. Domestic bonds, however, were steady. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were upward. The strength of grains did not affect other commodity markets.
